

1. Why do we need some kind of ergodicity in our theories? / What is the ontological status of ergodicity? / Is ergodicity necessary to our theories?
2. What is the relationship between the KAM Theorem and the second law of the thermodynamics?
3. What are the main problems when we try to interpret micro-theory, in the context of macro-quantities?

Greetings,
Czímer Gábor